

Game review:

Life

a OnePageBook™

Brendan Martin & Geir Isene

Overall review

- The graphics of this game are totally insane!
- Make sure you keep getting invited to play this game

Controllers

- Controllers are simple – it is your thoughts, your brain
- There is even sensory feedback. If your character gets hurt you can actually feel the pain

Levels

- Levels seem hard to understand and the system is rather complex
- You can level up in a vast amount of different areas, even in sex

Bonus level

- Make the game better for everyone you meet
- Love the obstacles, and don't try to cheat

Other characters

- Your neighbour, your boss, your colleague, your friend
- Part of the fun is admiring the blend

Multi-player options

- Almost 7 billion members playing every day
- Most will listen if you have something to say

Negative aspects

- You'll miss this game when its finally gone
- You'll definitely want to again respawn

Cheat codes

- Be 100% here and now when you decide to play
- Love your character every single day
- You get bonus points for compassion, empathy and care
- Others will admire your passion and flair
- Forget blame, shame, and regrets
- Head outside and admire the sunsets

Final comment

- This is a game, not just for today, more like a lifetime
- I hope you appreciate it... now, tomorrow... any time

This OnePageBook™ reviews the game of life. Get a new take on this game you like to think you know all too well.

The publisher, "Å" (A-Circle AS, www.acircle.no) carries the slogan, "Boosting performance". The company helps teams and individuals to higher performance, reaching their potential.

The author can be contacted here:

Geir Isene: geir@a-circle.no

<http://isene.com>

Brendan Martin: brendan@a-circle.no

<http://brendanmartin.com>

Each player must accept the cards life deals him or her: but once they are in hand, he or she alone must decide how to play the cards in order to win the game.
(Voltaire)

Play the game for more than you can afford to lose... only then will you learn the game.
(Winston Churchill)

"Life is a puzzle, a riddle, a test, a mystery, a game—whatever challenge you wish to compare it to. Just remember, you're not the only participant; no one person holds all the answers, the pieces, or the cards. The trick to success in this life is to accumulate teammates and not opponents."
(Richelle E. Goodrich)

Oslo, Norway, 2019-04-15